1. I asked [redacted] to arrange to buy a television set for General Carter's office.

2. Bob Bannerman advised me that [redacted] of the Defense Intelligence Agency had been designated as the focal point in the Department of Defense for the damage assessment in the [redacted] case.

3. [redacted] advised me that [redacted] had advised him that "the maid moved out on 22 November--satisfactory disentanglement proceeding." I passed this on to Jack Earman, who thought that this would solve a problem as far as he was concerned.

4. Matt Baird was in to talk with me about some of his trip plans. He has considerable leave to use before the end of the year. He would like to spend some time at [redacted] and also visit the [redacted] as well as the [redacted]. He proposed to leave [redacted] as Acting Director of Training during these trips but to have [redacted] sit in the Director of Training's office to back up [redacted] if necessary. I said that this was satisfactory to me but that I would like to have his itinerary as soon as he knows it.

5. [redacted] and his staff gave me a briefing on the [redacted] Operations Division and Station and later a very enjoyable luncheon. The attached organization chart is fairly descriptive.

a. As I understand it, the Deputy for Operations will actually be the [redacted] station and will in time take over from the area divisions any operations they have going in the states. However, they expect these tasks to be assigned to them by the Deputy Director for Plans and they will not merely become an extension of the several separate divisions. (If this actually happens, it seems to me that DD/S business with DODS in the security, finance, and other fields will be stepped up considerably, while in theory at least there should be a corresponding decrease in business with the various area divisions. Time will tell how this works out.)

b. [redacted] is the Deputy for Commercial Operations. They have a part of the old Commercial Management Staff headed by [redacted] and this is now the Commercial Management Branch.

d. Tracy talked to me about some more downtown office space, more space in the headquarters building, etc. I told him that about all I could say was that he would have to get in line.

7. [REDACTED] was in to brief me on four alternate plans for accomplish-

we will have to employ a large number of additional security officers in order to accomplish these tasks or we will accept responsibility for a big security problem without having adequate control to discharge this responsibility. In addition to this, depending on which one of four alternatives is put into effect, an additional contracting burden, possibly of tremendous magnitude, might fall upon us. Our resources in this field are not unlimited, and I want to make sure that General Carter is aware of these implications before signing off on any of these alternative plans.)
